RE: Stickney Avenue Landfill and the Tyler Street Dump Sites, Toledo, Ohio

Dear Ms. Adams:

I am responding on behalf of Farley Inc. to the request for information sent to us regarding the above captioned sites on September 10, 1993. Farley Inc. has no information in its possession responsive to your request for either site. The period in question, as stated in your letter, is 1951 to 1981. Farley Inc. had no operations and, in fact, did not exist as of 1981. We believe that the business whose activities you are seeking to obtain information about is Doehler-Jarvis company in Toledo, Ohio. In 1981 that company was owned by NL Industries in New York. They have been previously identified to you by the current owners of Doehler-Jarvis.

In 1982, Farley Inc., then named Farley Metals, Inc., purchased assets including the Doehler-Jarvis company's assets from NL Industries. Our purchase of the assets and operation of the business we called Doehler-Jarvis Division occurred after the date of your inquiry. If further information is desired or if you believe that this letter is not responsive to your information request, please contact me and I will obtain additional information for you regarding the activities of Farley Inc. and the time periods.

Very truly yours,

David K. Henriksen
Director - Risk Management
